EUROPEANCEO INTERVIEWS LOTTERIES AND GAMING AUTHORITY CHIEF EXECUTIVE

The latest issue of the influential International Magazine, EuropeanCEO carried an interview with the Lotteries and Gaming Authority Chief Executive, Mr Mario Galea.

The special issue included a survey of the on-line gaming market in which Malta was featured as a reputable jurisdiction that regulates this industry.

The publication which is targeted to top level management and decision making executives with a circulation of more than 45,000 copies, outlined Malta's involvement in this particular industry and its importance within the European dimension.

The article also outlines the phenomenal growth of the Maltese jurisdiction during the past year and mentions the overwhelming response of remote gaming operators to be licensed in Malta.

The report focused on the ability of the Lotteries and Gaming Authority in transcending the regulatory limitations of brick and mortar gaming, and transforming them to high-tech media.

The article stresses that as an EU member state, Malta has harmonised regulations and services with the rest of the other member states, however the island remains the only one with a complete regulatory regime for on-line gaming.

Furthermore, the feature portrays the regulations as pragmatic which focus on the importance of player protection and the promotion of responsible gaming.
